Greetings District 29 !!

It's been a busy month starting with the first quarterly of this rotation. We discussed several motions. Copies of those that were passed will be available at the next District meeting.

I also participated in the Pierce county DCM sharing meeting on January 21 at CSO. This is a meeting that we decided to restart to encourage cooperation and communication between the districts of Pierce County. We have set dates for the upcoming GSR school and Pre conference.

The GSR school will be on February 26 and the Pre-conference on March 26. Fliers will be available at the February District meeting.

Keith and I met with our past Archivist at our storage unit and reimburse her for three months rent and also paid this month's rent.

District 29 received a packet from Puyallup High School. There were numerous thank you letters from the students that attended. Great Job and thank you to the Public Information panel and especially to Carol N who facilitated.

Hope to see you all at the next District meeting or at your Home Groups. I'll be attending as many as I can get

ALTERNATE DCM

Hello District 29, we have our pre-conference on March 26th at the Lakewood Methodist Church 9am to 3pm hope to see your GSR's and ALT. GSR's there. Tim and I are looking forward to bringing back great information to you from the WWA 72 Quarterly April 1-2 in Mt. Vernon.

I have managed to visit some of your meetings so far and I am looking forward to seeing everyone, I have noticed unity being a focus topic this is wonderful to hear. After all, some great person in history did write united we stand, divided we fall.

We are still on the watch for a new and more permanent place to meet for District 29 please keep your eyes and ears open and let us know of a viable place.

Love and Peace,

ARCHIVES

Hello to all in Dist. 29 land! I'll ask this question until somebody steps up to do some service work; would anyone out there like to be my Alternate Archivist? Service work is fun, informative, and you get to meet more alcoholics than just at your home groups...TRY IT, YOU JUST MIGHT LIKE IT!!! So, if you ask yourself, "is this for me?", and you find your answer is "yes", you can call me at 253-228-7432; or my email is soberarch@gmail.com.

God bless us all as we trudge this happy, sometimes hard, but ALWAYS worth it, road to destiny.

With Love in Service,

Mike Archer,
Dist. 29 Archivist

NEWSLETTER EDITOR

If you notice the font is different in my little piece, it is because I think in Comic Sans. And "yes", I do growl in French....my only other (and larger)"moving" part is Irish but let's not go there....

Again, a deep Thank You to our former editor, Larry H., without whose incredible assistance this would be a more unreadable mess.

As I am trying to coordinate over 40 contributors, I ask that as far as possible please submit your contributions by e-mail with a MS Word .doc attachment. It's the easiest way to handle all the info. It's still a learning thing...with your help... it will get better !!!

REGISTRAR

Greetings from the Registrar,
A new service position, a first article, and my first question, what should I write? So start with "First things First". Keep those cards and letters coming, that I way I can keep our fellowship informed of who is doing what and how to keep in touch.

In the first two and a half pages of "How it Works" we find 10 practical points of recovery: 1) thoroughly followed our path; 2) completely give themselves; 3) developing rigorous honesty; 4) willing to go to any length; 5) fearless and thorough; 6) let go absolutely; 7) asked his protection and care with complete abandon; 8) the steps we took; 9) do not be discouraged; 10) willing to grow along spiritual lines. When this is read at our meetings I am reminded of these points. Thank you, I need lots of repetition.

I kind of like #9 – do not be discouraged – the best. Well, at this moment I do. By keeping true to the other nine points when discouragement does occur it is short lived by relying on a power greater than me, God. What God brings to me... is you with your experience, your strength, your hope. AWESOME, when I come with a problem, a solution can always be found, when I am willing to listen. Keep coming back, it is working for me and it will for you.

In Service,
Al – Coholic

THIRD LEGACY

12TH STEP LIASON

TREASURER

As I write this, Karen and I are closing out our first month as your Treasurer and Alternate. Everything balances. We show a few expenses from 2010 that would have been paid in December, except that we weren't presented with the bills until after 2010 had been closed out. As of today, I have paid every bill of which I am aware.

As most of you are aware, every component of the AA Service Structure is experiencing a decrease in contributions, while expenses continue to climb. Last year our Delegate Dave T. returned from the Conference with the message that we need "just a little more" from everyone. That is still a good message. I don't really believe that very many groups are hoarding large amounts of money. Most groups are struggling to get by, and are contributing what they can. The money to put us back in good financial shape is in the pockets of AA members. My theme this year is going to be: What will it take to convince those who are able to give a little more, to actually do so? I challenge each member to examine his or her own circumstances and answer this question: If I increase my level of contribution to my home group by $2 to $5 per week, will it reduce my standard of living? I'm betting that 90% of our members can answer no to that question. That little bit of extra will go a long way toward making AA financially solvent.

Yours in Service,
Keith Peterson

Into Action

I love my job, thank God for AA!

--Action Log Editor 2011

"The Buddha spoke gently, "Once a person is caught by belief in a doctrine, one loses all one's freedom. When one becomes dogmatic, that person believes his or her doctrine is the only truth and that all other doctrines are heresy. Disputes and conflicts all arise from narrow views. They can extend endlessly, wasting precious time and sometimes even leading to war. Attachment to views is the greatest impediment to the spiritual path. Bound to narrow views, one becomes so entangled that it is no longer possible to let the door of truth open."

Thich Nhat Hanh

I'd love to write a book on this subject. It makes me sad to see just how many people limit their own perspectives by clinging to views and ideas that they've embraced just because someone else has taught them that they're true. It's like we're willing to sacrifice our own freedom just to hold on tightly to a belief that may or may not be true. Most dogma is based on the beliefs of people--Christian dogma, for example, is based on the interpretations of people, not on the words of Christ. Many churches hold on to interpretations that have been disproved by new translations, yet because someone hundreds of years ago interpreted the Bible in a certain way; the churches still cling to the ideas because they're now "tradition."

If we want to become truly spiritual beings, we must embark on our own journeys into ourselves and our personal relationship with God or life. The answers to my spiritual questions are not in someone else's interpretation of anything--I must learn to trust myself and my own perspective on life.

Have you ever thought someone was mad at you, and it made you feel awful? This was a belief, and it held you back because you didn't like having someone angry with you. When you later found out that the person wasn't angry with you, your belief was shattered, and it no longer made you feel awful.

Likewise, if we keep ourselves open to learning and growing, we will find out that some of the beliefs that we hold on to are actually holding us back, making us feel awful, and if we were able to cast them aside we'd be able to move on and to grow more. We owe it to ourselves to walk on a clear path, one that's not overgrown with the dogma that other people have created, trying to get others to believe exactly what they believe.

Ruby stepped toward him. "Edward," she said softly. It was the first time she had called him by name. "Learn this from me. Holding anger is a poison. It eats you from inside. We think that hating is a weapon that attacks the person who harmed us. But hatred is a curved blade. And the harm we do, we do to ourselves.

Forgive, Edward. Forgive. Do you remember the lightness you felt when you first arrived in heaven?"

Eddie did. Where is my pain?

"That's because no one is born with anger. And when we die, the soul is freed of it. But now, here, in order to move on, you must understand why you felt what you did, and why you no longer need to feel it."

She touched his hand.

"You need to forgive your father."

Mitch Albom

from The Five People You Meet in Heaven

When we're angry with someone else, especially for long periods of time, we do harm to ourselves. It's such a simple concept to understand, but understanding it doesn't usually make it easier to control our anger. After all, some things that people do to us or to others are so bad that we "have to" stay mad, we "have to" hold onto the righteous anger that results from their actions. It sounds logical, but it's completely untrue. When we're angry or resentful, we hurt ourselves. It's worth repeating, over and over, every day of our lives, until we're free of such feelings. Anger will never help us to move on to higher levels of self, for it stunts our growth and keeps us locked in negativity while we should be growing in positive ways.

Forgiveness helps us to cast away our anger. So do compassion, love, and understanding. We have so many gifts available to us that can help us to grow as people that are held in check by our negative emotions that we risk being held prisoner at low levels of being by them.

If we're going to move on, we can't take our anger with us. We have to leave it behind or it will hold us down while we beat our wings in a futile effort to fly. It takes a strong decision on our part, and it takes a lot of effort to follow through on that decision, which is probably why so few people are willing to make the commitment to try to live anger-free. It's easier to be angry than it is to forgive, but if we're angry, we're feeding our ego. If we get rid of the anger, we're feeding our higher selves. Which one do you want to be feeding?

I think so many of us are too hard on ourselves for what we didn't accomplish or what we should have done.

The first step is to forgive yourself for all the things you didn't do that you should have and all the things that you did do that you shouldn't have. Get rid of the guilt. Negative feelings don't do you much good. The way to deal with them is to forgive yourself and forgive others. . . .

Forgiveness helps you come to terms with the past.

I've learned how to forgive myself, and this has helped me to no longer feel deep regrets or sadness about my past.

P.A.I.R.

Ah, Yay !! It's almost Valentine's Day! I'd better get a temporary boyfriend so I can nag and whine until he gets me something so I can complain and give it back because it's not what I asked for. That's how I roll....

Here's the birthdays for the month of January:

Nelson O.	24 hours
Joe B.	90 days
Eric J.	90 days
Marilyn P.	5 months
Elle M.	6 months
Rob L.	3 years

Happy Birthday, everyone! We have a DAMN good meeting here at PAIR. Come see us on Tuesdays at 8:00 pm, and/or on Fridays at 7:00 pm. (Did you catch that, Brent? FRIDAYS ARE AT 7:00 PM) We have our phone commitment on the 3rd Saturday of every month over at CSO in Tacoma. We have a food themed potluck (February's is "Anything that crawled before it died" theme.) We play cards, games, and sometimes even miniature bowling in the lobby. Mostly, it's to keep the hand of AA out there for anyone who needs our help!

Yours in service,

Margie H.

SHOP GROUP

Greetings from the Shop Group At Large. We kicked off the New Year by doing a group inventory which was facilitated by Jack from Maple Valley. If your group has never done this you might find it is an awesome experience and the way to focus on what your group's mission is. We had a good attendance and set plans in motion for the New Year.

We are going to resume going on road trips and we started with Gig Harbor for the Spiritual breakfast meeting on Sunday the 16th and our next road trip is going to be to Freemont. Check with one of our home group members for time and meeting place. We would love to have you join us.

STRAIGHT SHOOTERS GROUP

Greetings from the Straight Shooters group in Sumner. January proved to be a busy month as usual. The men of Straight Shooters have been supporting the Prosperity House Men's treatment meeting every Friday evening @ 7:00. If you are interested in attending this meeting please call David P. for sign up info and details (253-241-5797). Thanks to a few of our home group members, we successfully completed some minor repairs out at our meeting venue "the Sumner Sportsman Club". Because of their hard work, we were credited one month's rent by the club, and thus will be able to send that money out into the AA community. I wish everybody out there great things in Sobriety! Peace.

A Word From Margie

Things I've learned the hard way:

#13- Just because the bottle says "Bleach" on it does NOT mean it was meant to whiten your teeth.

#7- You will not get sold a handgun if you are crying.

#66- No matter how tempting it looks, don't lick velcro.

#3- Never have your dog stuffed.

#9- Avoid getting toothpaste in your armpits

#17- Giving something up for lent makes you want it REAL BAD....

#21- You can get by on charm for about 15 minutes. After that, you'd better know something.

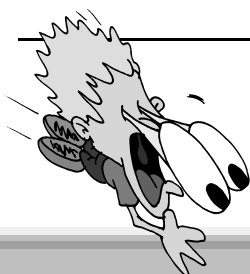

Of course my favorite one is: No matter how badly your heart is broken, the world doesn't stop for your grief. Well, not exactly my favorite, but one that makes the most sense. I always thought that if someone close to me died, if I hurt myself, my boyfriend dumped me, they stopped making microwavable cheese-whiz in a cup.....that everyone needed to know about it, try and ease my pain, and put their lives on hold until my pain was bearable. Or as my sister once said, "Are you done sucking the life out of us yet? Because I have laundry to fold." Such a simple sentence yet it says so much.

I try to look at it a little differently now. (Not that I run out and try and find someone to help when my heart is breaking.) But when these things DO happen, my second reaction is to ask somebody who's been there before me just how in the hell do I do this sober. BECAUSE I DON'T KNOW. Then maybe, just maybe, on another day in another time, someone will ask ME what I did in a similar situation. And maybe I can help.

Which reminds me of #45: Microwavable cheez-whiz is the temperature of melted steel and sticking the tip of your tongue in it after opening is never, ever, a good idea.....

Margie H.
